Designing Warnings for Developers

Anastasia Danilova

The talk briefly introduces the plan and work on warnings for developers. A number of security issues caused by wrong implementation have been discussed in the past. In order to prevent security issues we want to warn the developer during security related events. To do so, design warnings for developer need to be investigated and evaluated.

We designed different warning approaches which will be presented and discussed during the talk.